Desert Patterns

Seen through the "eye" of a satellite sensor, ribbons of Saharan sand dunes seem to glow in sunset colors. These patterned stripes are part of Tag Chalet, a dune field sand sea in southwestern Algeria, Africa, where the prevailing winds create an orderly shifting collage of large, linear sand dunes. The term "tag" is derived from an Arabic word for a field of sand dunes.